

Kimmy Schenter

Bio:

Kimmy Schenter is a color and aesthetics expert; finding creative solutions from innovation through manufacturing to bring design ideas to life.

She gained valuable technical skills during her time at X-Rite as well as experience with color on a variety of materials using various application methods. These skills were effective in creating quality products and processes that translated into trusting relationships. These relationships were critical for her time at Nike and Under Armour where she worked in design and innovation.

She also teaches Color Theory at the Portland Fashion Institute; a highly regarded teacher working to inspire the new generation of designers.
